West Wits Mining Limited (“West Wits” or “the Company”) is pleased to provide an operational update for its Sol Plaatje Project (SPP), Gauteng Province, South Africa.

To the end of December 2016 approx. 23,000 tonnes of ore had been extracted from the SPP and trucked to the nearby Mogale gold plant. In December approx. 9,000 tonnes was extracted as the ramp in production continues to a targeted production of 12,000 tonnes per month by the end of calendar Q1 2017 and an eventual monthly production rate of 15,000 tonnes per month.

Michael Quinert, Chairman commented, “Whilst the ramp up of SPP has taken longer than expected we are pleased with the progress made over December. We are confident that SPP has now demonstrated its potential to all concerned and that of the wider Soweto Cluster tenement generally. We look forward to reporting on further increases to tonnage processed over the coming months”.

The mine plan for SPP is under constant review. Work is currently being undertaken assessing the expansion of the current 2 pits within the mine plan. In addition planning work is also being undertaken to substantially increase the size of the project with the addition of 3 further pits along strike. Current indications are that the project may sustain significantly higher tonnages than were originally planned at a lower head grade. Various scenarios for optimising the projects potential are being reviewed by the Company’s consultants with the head contractor. The Christmas break delayed completion of the process but work is now again proceeding.

Further meetings to finalise the mine plan and the definitive agreements are planned to commence in the first week of February with an agreement to be finalised by the end February. In the interim the operation is continuing pursuant to the term sheet on the mutual understanding between the Company and its contractors that adjustments will be required under the final agreement to accommodate the likely expansion of the tonnage recovered at lower grade.

Details of the final mine plan and definitive agreement will be announced in due course. Thus far the Company has received ZAR 1.7 million (approx. A$170,000) for the period of operations from commencement in August up until end November 2016 which saw some 14,000 tonnes of ore processed. Further payments are expected to be finalised in the coming weeks for the December operations which alone involved the processing of over a further 9,000 tonnes of ore at a head grade of circa 2 g/t au.

The Company will continue to provide further updates for SPP as production continues to increase, expanded mine plans are finalised and agreements executed.
